

International Modena Club

You Gotta Love It!

By Dave Cooke
Spencer, Iowa

The International Modena Club is now beginning its fourth year since it was first announced to the Modena hobby on March 17, 2003 and WOW things have gone far beyond anyone's expectations! With the interaction of Modena hobbyists around the world it has brought Modena breeders closer together than ever before.

The International Modena club has a large list of affiliated clubs that have become a part of the IMC family of clubs. With more than 300 members and climbing the membership is experiencing a Modena club we can all be proud to be a member. The IMC has a lot to offer Modena breeders that most of the hobbyists didn't imagine was possible. The IMC has a first-class website at <http://www.internationalmodenaclub.com/> thanks to Web Master, Tim Taylor. The IMC also has an informative online Discussion Group as well as a chat night on Saturday evening at 7:00 PM Eastern time.

The International Modena Club has numerous shows throughout the countries that are fun to attend and fellowship you won't want to miss. Remember the good old days of going to a show and having the time of your life. Relive those days of old at an International Modena Club show near you!

One of the BIG shows people around the USA are already talking about is the IMC Young Bird & Yearling Show on October 7th 2006 at Willi Richert's ranch in Valley Center, Kansas. The show is expected to draw more than 500 Modenas in 2006 with breeders from the USA, Australia and Canada in attendance. If you want to be treated to a great show, the very best of competition, good food and a lot of laughter then come enjoy yourself at this IMC event.

The next International Modena Club show is with the Central Nebraska Modena Club who will be again hosting this IMC show in Hastings, Nebraska on November 10th and 11th 2006. I attended the show last year where Jawain and Scott Adams along with Joel Smith put on an event that was top rated. The big breakfast buffet put on by the club at this show is wonderful and you certainly won't leave hungry.

Then we have the International Modena Club's Central Region Show hosted by the Louisiana Modena Club to be held November 10th and 11th 2006 in Opelousas, Louisiana. Dan Tucker and his group will host a first-class show and the food and fellowship will be another reason to attend this event. Plans are already underway for a visit to New Orleans that you won't want to miss.

With these International shows throughout the country, they will draw the top breeders of the "Bird of Curves" to these events. So whether you are a novice or a veteran looking for a first-class show, great food, fun and fellowship then you want to attend an International Modena Club show and experience a show like never have before. IMC members will take time to answer any questions you might have or you might pick up a bird or two from one of the many top breeders in attendance. Official IMC merchandise is available at the show so come join us!

If you are not yet an IMC member and would like to join the fun then please go to the website and join today with Visa/MasterCard for your convenience or contact:

B. Tim Taylor
Secretary/Treasurer
10032 Goodrich Road
Bloomington, MN 55437-2413